FOR RACE AND NATION

MURDERED BY THE GOVERMENT

'Softly softly' policing policy to blame for deaths of two young soldiers in Belfast

THE BLOOD of the two young soldiers brutally murdered by an IRA mob in West Belfast last month lies squarely on the hands of the Thatcher Government.

The two men, Corporals Derek Wood and David Howes, were the victims of the government's 'softly softly' security policy in Northern Ireland, formulated in the spirit of the Anglo-Irish Agreement and designed deliberately to appease the Government of the Irish Republic, republicans in Ulster and 'world opinion', in particular opinion in the United States.

In keeping with this policy, there was no police or army presence at the funeral of IRA man Kevin Brady — a presence which, had it existed, would have almost certainly prevented the slaughter of the two men.

Moreover, a further chance of saving the men occurred when an RUC helicopter hovering ahead sent back live TV pictures of the attack on the men, which were seen by officers in barracks monitoring the event. There was time to send a squad of armed RUC men to the scene, only a short distance away, but this was not done for fear of causing a riot. Though this decision was officially made by an RUC officer, it is virtually certain that before it there was consultation with the Northern Ireland Office, possibly with Ulster Secretary Tom King himself. And there is no doubt that the decision not to send the men in was made in accordance with general government policy of 'softly softly' policing.

There can only be one final judgement on this brutal and sadistic slaughter. The buck stops ultimately with the politicians — with the government, the old-gang political parties and the sickly and traitorous 'liberal' ruling establishment.

For, apart from the catastrophic errors committed in connection with this specific event, these politicians are responsible for the whole miserable 'no-win' policy adopted in the war against the IRA, a policy that has now continued for nearly 20 years, and as a result of which IRA terror is as rampant as ever in the province.

NO WILL TO DEFEAT THE GANGSTERS

It is not as if Britain does not possess the physical means to defeat republican terrorism. On the rare occasions when our security forces are given their head, they are

THEIR BLOOD ON WESTMINSTER'S HANDS
Corporals Derek Wood (left) and David Howes (right) met their deaths because neither police or army were on hand to save them from the IRA mob. This was due to the government's policy of not maintaining a security presence at IRA funerals — as part of a stance of appeasement towards the Irish Republic, in keeping with the treasonable 'Anglo-Irish Agreement'. In addition to this, an RUC detachment within a short distance of the scene was prevented from going in to rescue the men — despite knowledge of their plight — for fear of 'provoking' a riot with the republicans. Most certainly, this decision was made in accordance with a top-level directive from Ulster Secretary King, acting on behalf of the Thatcher government

Are 'racially sensitive' news stories being hushed up?

IT RATED no more than a few paragraphs of coverage on the inside pages of a couple of local newspapers. Yet it was an event that should have been NATIONAL NEWS. After all, the mass media are always on the lookout for a good story, particularly if it involves an act of violence.

But no!

When a fire-bomber lobbed a molotov cocktail into South Norwood Police Station (SE London), where it exploded, setting a lobby ablaze, and might have burnt the building down but for the prompt action of two officers, not a word about the incident was mentioned in any of the national papers, or on national TV or radio news networks.

Was this because the newsmen and reporters of Fleet Street and the BBC were all on holiday, or asleep that day, and just missed out on the story?

Was it because newspaper editors had taken longer than usual over their liquid lunches?

HIDING THE TRUTH?

Or was it perhaps because South Norwood Police Station is located in what is coyly described as a 'racially sensitive' area, and the youth said to be responsible was a young Black? Was it perhaps because, on this occasion, 'community relations' were considered to be more important than telling the truth to the public?

We do not know precisely why this unusual event got so little coverage. Maybe there is some other explanation for this strange lapse on the part of our fearless investigative newspapermen than the ones we have offered.

All we do say is that if this kind of thing is starting to happen our media should come clean about the matter — if they do not wish to be written off as LIARS and HUMBUGS — propagandists of an officialdom which wants to impose multi-racialism on the people of this country by any kind of deceit or concealment possible.

Such incidents are matters of legitimate public concern. In the end, if there is no far-reaching cause for alarm, then apprehension will be better allayed by honest reporting.

The South Norwood incident is not the only one of its kind. Another police station, in Forest Gate (East London) had its ground floor wrecked at about the same time. Again, arson was suspected. This was

BEYOND CAPITALISM AND SOCIALISM

WITH Mr. Nigel Lawson's latest budget, the Tories are currently chortling over what they call their final 'victory' over socialism.

We nationalists ourselves hold no brief for marxian socialism. To the extent that it has actually been put into practice in Britain, it has brought nothing but disaster. The creed of Labour, as of all other marxist parties, is grounded in a despicable mentality of envy and class hatred. It is the mentality of the Under-Man, in revolt against any form of human superiority, and the final aim of which is to stifle the talent and energy of the higher human being on whom, in reality, all true progress depends.

Marxist ideology panders to mass resentment by preaching the obvious lie that 'all men are equal'. The types of human failures and mediocrities (many of them from wealthy backgrounds) who tend to make up the dominant factor in all left-wing parties and movements try to fool themselves that they and their ilk are failures because they have been held back by what they call the 'oppression' of an 'unfair' society.

Above all, of course, they promote the idea of an 'international proletariat' — to which all 'workers' in the world are said to belong — a concept which is an insult to any decent British working man. To give the lie to this piece of insolence it should be sufficient to point out that the life of the British car worker, for example, is the death of the Japanese (and vice versa), and there are no circumstances in which the latter intends to give up his nationhood.

Overall, it is quite true to say that this ugly and degenerate creed of socialism bears a heavy burden of responsibility for Britain's present decline.

But none of this makes the Tory 'alternative' any better. In fact, there is nothing new at all in Mr. Lawson's current prescriptions.

They are just a further extension of the Tory dogma of unfettered international capitalism which has been applied with such ruinous effects to Britain's economy for nearly nine years. The Tories believe that international economic forces should just be allowed to take their course, and that private self-enrichment is an end in itself. Thus cheap foreign goods have been allowed to invade our home market, devastating Britain's industrial and technological base and, in the process, throwing millions of British workers on the dole.

Meanwhile, if it suits a private businessman (British or otherwise) to export abroad the capital, technology and jobs built up by the hard efforts of British people — workers, managers, entrepreneurs and investors alike — perhaps over many generations, and which he may have been able to get control of by a single day's slick speculation on the Stock Exchange, then — say the Tories — so be it!

Mr. Lawson claims that his tax-cuts will provide incentives for wealth-creation in Britain. But in fact these tax-cuts disproportionately favour a certain section of the 'new rich' — a class of millionaires (many of cosmopolitan origins, all of internationalist outlook) who have done very well out of the international system. Such people's private financial success has been gained at the Stand by White South Africa!

ONCE AGAIN our Prime Minister has chosen to make a public fool of herself — and of Britain — over South Africa. Along with other leaders of the 'democratic' West, she joined the recent appeal to the South African President P.W. Botha for 'clemency' on behalf of six Blacks sentenced to death for being part of a mob which sadistically hacked to death a fellow African who was a councillor in the black township of Sharpville, near Johannesburg. The six were found guilty of complicity in the murder by sharing a common purpose with the killers.

The riot in which this killing occurred had been part of the would-be revolutionary mayhem which the communist-controlled African National Congress (ANC) has been stirring up in recent years. The ANC mob murdered the black councillor because, as a holder of public office, he had remained loyal to the white government of South Africa.

Despite the false impression conveyed by our lying mass media that virtually all of South Africa's non-white population are in rebellion against the government there, it remains a fact that the great majority of non-Whites are perfectly prepared to recognise their white rulers — for the very good reason that they know that it is much in their best interests to do so.

The African population in South Africa remains internally divided along tribal lines and is in no way united in its political attitudes. In fact only a minority supports the ANC. This being so, there is widespread understanding among Blacks themselves that they have more to lose than to gain if white rule — the sole bulwark of order and civilisation in the country — were to be replaced by what is fraudulently described as 'majority rule' but would in reality amount to a marxist dictatorship under the ANC.

WHY DOES MRS. THATCHER SIDE WITH COMMUNISTS?

So why does Mrs. Thatcher go out of her way to degrade herself and her country, publicly associating us with the cause of a black communist revolutionary movement, by speaking out on behalf of a group of vicious thugs who, on all the evidence, fully deserve to suffer the death penalty?

Clearly, the Blacks in South Africa themselves do not stand to benefit from the destruction of South Africa's long-standing system of racial separation within a framework of white leadership.

If this be doubted, we need only look at a few examples of what has happened to the rest of Africa since white rule there was brought to an end.

Ethiopia is not only famine-ridden, as the media endlessly remind us, but rent with half a dozen civil wars. The country is nominally governed from its capital Addis Ababa, by a brutal and corrupt Soviet-backed military dictatorship which has not only murdered countless Ethiopians but probably welcomes the famines afflicting the country as an indirect means of destroying the various rebel factions by exterminating the populations supporting them.

Uganda, once the jewel of East Africa under British colonial rule, has degenerated into a state of anarchy and starvation with nobody at all in effective command.

VICTIM OF THE A.N.C.
This Black is shown receiving the 'necklace' treatment, being burnt alive by having a rubber tyre fixed around his neck. This is what happens to Blacks in South Africa who fall foul of the thugs of the African Nationalist Congress, the body which our own government wants to take over South Africa

Mozambique, a former Portugese territory lying to the north east of South Africa, has been brought to ruin in tribal civil strife.

'Zimbabwe', once the civilised white state of Rhodesia, has witnessed incessant inter-tribal conflict, with intermittent massacres of African by African and occasionally of European by African (despite its absolute dependence on the continued presence of Europeans to run its economy if collapse is to be staved off), ever since the Rhodesian Whites were cynically tricked by Mrs. Thatcher into handing over their country to the rule of black marxists nine years ago.

Zambia, formerly called Northern Rhodesia, is similarly a basket case, depending on substantial sums in foreign aid from the British taxpayer to survive. Its sole asset is its copper mines, which would fold up without white technicians to keep them going.

BLACKS FLOODING INTO SOUTH AFRICA

According to the media, South Africa is supposed to be some sort of much more than a match for the grubby little gangsters of the IRA. They have recently proved this in no uncertain way by cleanly and efficiently wiping out a gang of these terrorists who were attempting to set off a bomb in Gibraltar.

There is no reason why the SAS, who achieved this success, should not, together with other seasoned anti-terrorist units of the Army and RUC, be unleashed in a full-scale offensive against the republican gangsters in Northern Ireland itself. Nor is there the slightest reason to doubt the successful outcome of such an offensive, designed from the outset to bring about the final extermination of the IRA, if once it were undertaken. The only thing lacking is the political will, on the part of government, to launch any such operation.

The full appalling extent of this disgraceful collapse of will among Britain's modern-day rulers was thoroughly exposed in the circumstances surrounding the butchery of the two young army corporals by the republican mob in West Belfast.

Not only had Ulster Secretary Tom King allowed the funeral procession, where the two men died, to go ahead; he had permitted it to do so without any police of army supervision worth the name at all. Sinn Fein, the IRA's political front, which incites and speaks in defence of the latter's acts of terror and murder, and which organised this procession, was in effect given control of th streets.

It seems that this was all part of a policy deliberately agreed between Mr. King, acting on behalf of Mrs. Thatcher and the government in London, and the Sinn Fein leaders — an agreement to 'softly softly' policing at republican funerals. It should be borne in mind that such funerals, and the processions that go with them, are used by Sinn Fein as republican political propaganda and recruiting jamborees, often attended by uniformed, masked and armed IRA thugs.

CONSEQUENCES OF APPEASEMENT

In mainland Britain we have ourselves become familiar with the consequences of this kind of appeasement and abdication by our government, in pursuit of its policy of peace at any price, in some of what are described as our 'racially sensitive' inner cities.

This is how it came about that Corporals Wood and Howes, both in plain clothes, were dragged from their car after driving close to the funeral procession and then savagely done to death. Having fallen into the hands of the republican mob, they were stripped, beaten, dragged away to a nearby drinking club, tortured, thrown 15 feet onto a pavement outside the building, and finally shot in cold blood by a professional IRA killer. The security forces, in obedience to the orders they had been given by their political masters, had no-one on the spot to help the two soldiers, who never had a chance.

These two young men are only the latest victims of the carnage. They certainly will not be the last.

Over the past two decades the pattern of events in Ulster has setled into a vicious circle in which, as the government at Westminster has pussyfooted and sought to appease them, the Irish republican terrorist elements have contemptuously responded to such weakness by stepping up their murder campaign against the province and its loyal British subjects. Since the present troubles began, every government has tripped over itself in its obscene haste to negotiate with republican factions within Northern Ireland itself, with the government of Eire, and even with the leaders of the IRA. None of this has stopped the latter, who have now done to death some thousands of people — soldiers, police and innocent civilians alike (mostly loyal British Ulster folk, but also ordinary Britons on the mainland) — and maimed many more in their unrelenting campaign with the bullet and the bomb.

ANGLO-IRISH AGREEMENT A SELL OUT

The present Tory government has carried this policy of creeping sell out further than any of its predecessors. The Anglo-Irish Agreement, concluded between Mrs. Thatcher and the Premier of the Irish Republic back in 1985, and giving the latter a say in Ulster's internal affairs, has had the effect of calling into question the whole British status of the province. By going so far in conceding to the republicans their claim on what is supposed to be a part of British sovereign territory, this act of betrayal has given these deadly enemies of Britain just the aid and comfort they wanted. It should not astonish anyone that the murderous assassins of the IRA now feel so cocky, or that they are so casual about committing heir atrocities. With the British government well and truly on the run, they must feel that they murderous methods are paying off, and that they have only to keep stepping up the bloodshed to get their way. Hence the Enniskillen bombing on Remembrance Day and the murder of the two corporals.

Nor is it in the least surprising that such policies of weakness and betrayal of the British folk of Ulster should be so lightly implemented by the kind of people who govern modern Britain. It is the same gang of traitors at Westminster who are selling out Ulster which is responsible for having flooded the rest of Britain with Afro-Asian immigrants. It is this same gang of traitors which has withdrawn effective police protection from ordinary law-abiding Britons in the multi-racial inner cities, as mugging, rape and riot rampage there unchecked. Whether in Ulster or any other part of the United Kingdom, the policy of the government is the same.

WHAT MUST BE DONE

In order for the terror of the IRA to be defeated, the first vital requirement is that government should show, by word and by deed, that the aims of the IRA will never be realised — and that Ulster will remain British for all time.

Next, we must have a government that recognises that it is in a state of war in Ulster and fights that war to win! This means merciless campaign against the IRA whereby the latter are hunted down and eliminated, by whatever means necessary, wherever they are found.

It means a total prohibition on all republican propaganda orgies, such as the funeral which led to the deaths of Corporals Wood and Howes.

And it means the termination of the Anglo-Irish Agreement, the telling of the Eire government that it has no business in Ulster, and the ending of all other efforts to appease Britain's enemies in the context of the Ulster situation.

It is vital that Ulster's status as a part of British territory should be made secure for all time; but on the mainland it is only British Nationalists who will ever unequivocally stand for this policy and act acordingly.

Never has here been greater need for a common front between the loyal British people of Northern Ireland and the genuine patriots of mainland Britain. Ulster can only be saved within the framework of a regenerated Britain under nationalist leadership.

The IRA must be smashed — about that there is wide agreement. But it is only British Nationalism that will ever adopt the methods necessary to that end.

THE ONGOING MAYHEM OF MULTI-RACIAL BRITAIN

New Asian gang-war fear in Southall

fact that it is only with the advent of the multi-racial society — brought about in this country since the Second World War through stealth and fraud — that types of crime have gained their grip on the streets of our country

DESPITE the efforts of the government and media to conceal the evil consequences of multi-racialism from the British people, reports have hinted at the truth of what is happening below the surface. The London Evening Standard recently carried a description of a new upsurge in gang violence within the West London Asian community of Southall.

This comes after three or four years during which the police thought they had subdued the main rival gangs, the so-called 'Holy Smokes' and the self-styled 'Tooti-Nung' (or 'Worthless Ones'). The illusion that the situation had been pacified was created by the imprisonment in the mid-1980s of some of the ringleaders. But now, as these are released from jail after completing the largely derisory sentences imposed upon them, the gangs are making a come-back.

In the renewed warfare between these criminal networks, in which there are fears of imminent deaths, it is said that Asian youngstera — some only 12 or 13 years of age — are being recruited by the gangs, sometimes with threats of beatings if they refuse to join. Fearsome weapons have been seized by police, including swords, meat cleavers, bayonets, knives, rice flails and a lethal ceremonial pike called a 'khanda'.

25 youths were said to have been arrested; but apart from this the police have been restricted to issuing appeals by way of Southall's Asian community leaders, to Asian parents to control their youngsters.

FRUITS OF MULTI-RACIALISM

It is obvious from this that a new dimension of criminal mayhem has arrived in Britain with the setting up of multi-racial conditions. It may well be that, in this as in so much else, our country is merely a little less further advanced down the same road of chaos and ruin as the United States, which gives us a picture of our own future if things are allowed to continue as they are.

It has recently been reported from Los Angeles that ethnic street gangs are building crime empires to rival the mafia. According to a spokesman for the city Police Department's Gang Unit, there are now gangs for virtually every ethnic minority in the city, from Negroes and Mexicans to Koreans, Samoans and Vietnamese. According to Korean-descended detective Ray Paik, there is "historic resistance to the police within the Asian community," particularly among Vietnamese admitted to the United States (as to Britain) as refugees from the 1970s onwards. These manifestations, in Paik's words, "originate from a completely different culture, not particularly trusting of the police."

According to one report, "street-gang members now carry automatic weapons and take their battles, drugs and extortion across the city. Police believe some are even resorting to random killings of innocent bystanders." One gang member, explaining why she joined a gang at the age of 13, said that it was because it was good "to have life and death power over somebody, to look at someone and say 'I'm going to kill you,' and to know they believe it."

Whilst random killing of this type has yet to appear in Britain, it is now generally admitted that there is widespread rejection of the law and hostility to the police in Afro-Asian-dominated neighbourhoods. There is no doubt that the gang-warfare phenomenon is getting a hold in Britain — whether it is a case of Sikh and Hindu gangsters in areas like Southall, or the West Indian mafia known as 'Yardies' in such places as Brixton or Tottenham.

THINGS GETTING OUT OF HAND

None of this, of course, is to ignore the existence of vicious white criminals. Nor is it to assert that all ethnic minority members necessarily support the gangster elements within their own communities. There is much evidence, for example, that the relative inaction, in the past, of members of Southall's Asian community in controlling its criminal gangs has been due largely to fear of the gangs' violence and power.

But what is obvious is that, whilst Britain was a homogeneous white nation, it was possible to keep down our home-grown criminals and undesirables within reasonable limits. There can be no question about the which the authorities now admit to us they cannot control.

If we are to avert total disaster, it is necessary for the British people to act NOW, while there is still time. It is NOW that the people should turn from the old political parties, which have all promoted multi-racialism, and give their political support instead to BRITISH NATIONALISM. We alone stand for the peaceful termination of the multi-racial experiment — by means of a humane programme of phased repatriation and resettlement of the ethnic minorities overseas.

Degeneracy in Britain

The ARISTOCRACY

JUST ONE MORE example of the degeneration of Britain's blue-bloods was provided last month. Henry Tennant, whose family are close to Royalty and whose mother, Lady Anne Glenconner, is lady-in-waiting to Princess Margaret, was reported to have left his wife and four-year-old son and taken off with a boy friend, black actor Kelvin Omard. In addition to this, Tennant has been diagnosed as having AIDS.

The news broke in The Daily Mail on March 30th. According to the Mail's report, which made the front page, Tennant has hopped off on a world tour with his black beau and was last seen on the Caribbean island of Bequia, four miles from Mustique, the island that his father, Colin Tennant, now Lord Glenconner, turned into a jet-set retreat for Royalty and other celebrities.

The Tennant family enjoy a vast fortune, the dynasty being founded in 1488. The present scions of the clan, however, have been a positive embarrassment to their mummy and daddy. Eldest son Charles, who was heir to the title, had to be cut off when he became a heroin addict.

It would be comforting to think that Charles and Henry Tennant were just a couple of bad apples in an otherwise good basket, but they are not. Junkies and queers are now rife in the families of Britain's aristocracy and upper classes. You only have to take a look at the young men of that section of society today to see how the once noble lines have degenerated over the years. Now, all the breed seems capable of producing is a collection of effete wimps.

British Nationalist is not a paper of class war; in fact we favour the institution of aristocracy. For the institution to be justified, however, it must be seen to be producing people fit to rule. Clearly, today's aristocracy is able to produce very few people of this quality. It is time that most of the aristocracy was weeded out and replaced — replaced by families of good blood from the ranks of the ordinary population. When the Nationalist movement is victorious in Britain, we will most certainly carry out this change. The families that produce specimens like the young Tennants will be deprived of their titles — and, by punitive taxation, of their wealth too — unless they put that wealth to good use in the service of Britain.

A leisured class is not in principle wrong — as long as its members use their leisure and riches to perform genuine public service. As long as they spend both on little else than long holidays in the fleshpots of the world, they are no use to this country and no use to anybody. To say this is not 'communist' — communists want to get rid of all people of superior rank and privileges; we only want to get rid of those who are not fit for the rank and privileges they inherit, and to bequeath that rank and those privileges to others who will be worthy of them in the work and services that they perform for the nation.

TENNANT AND 'FRIEND'

The CHURCH

THE CREATURE on the right is the Reverend Trevor Ward, former vicar of St. Agnes Church, Middlesborough, Cleveland. On the 29th March he was found guilty of various sexual offences against young boys, including choirboys, extending over a period of eight years.

And this was not all. Some time before he was finally sentenced, he offered to The Star newspaper his story of reminiscences while waiting in prison on remand — an offer that was refused.

Ward was a married man with two children and was believed by his parishoners to be "a compassionate vicar." But he led a double-life. He had been involved in homosexual vice since his student days. He was actively involved in the homosexual scene in his neighbourhood and was known there as the 'dog-collar poofter'.

Is Ward a rarity among the clergy? Unhappily, he is not. The People newspaper published on November 8th last year a large feature headlined on the front page as the 'Gay vicars scandal'. It began its report by speaking of "an astonishing catalogue of homosexual corruption within the church of England," and went on to list numerous cases of poofters who had disgraced the cloth by their perverted practices, often involving young choirboys.

Then there was the case in Manchester when a 15-year-old boy sat down on a sofa between two clergymen and found both of them, each unbeknown to the other, fondling him.

It is estimated now, within the Church of England itself, that about one third of the Church's entire clergy is 'queer'. Little wonder then that, when the Rev. Tony Higton tried at a clergy meeting to bring a motion urging the expulsion of homos from the clerical ranks, he was defeated.

The present-day Church in Britain, like the present-day aristocracy, is rotten to the core. Whatever the Church may once have been as a bastion of moral standards and a source of moral leadership to the nation, nowadays it has become a spiritual cesspit, with reptiles like the Rev. Ward a commonplace manifestation.

Not only has the contemporary Church become a nest of pederasts, it is also a hotbed of marxist subversives.

THE REV. TREVOR WARD
To his flock, a 'compassionate vicar'; behind the scenes, a seducer of choirboys

Name almost any anti-British, anti-white or pro-red cause anywhere in the world, and you can be quite sure that the clergy will be taking off, cassocks flying, to support and promote it.

The Church, like the aristocracy, needs to be cleaned out from top to bottom. Not only must we get rid of the one third of its paid functionaries who are queer, but we must kick out all 'gay' sympathisers as well.

We are convinced that there will not be the needed revolution in the Church unless and until there is a revolution in British politics, a revolution along nationalist lines, whereby the Church, like all other important national institutions, will be moulded to meet national needs.

YOUR LETTERS

Sir, — One of the tasks that the BNP has set out to achieve this year is to increase its membership by 50 per-cent.

When this object was first stated by John Tyndall, a number of members thought "fine — but isn't it a bit optimistic?"

But the target should not be beyond us at all if everyone in the party pulled their finger out. Let us look at the target in a slightly different light. Supposing we say that every member of the party should aim during the year to recruit one member each!

If this were done, our membership would increase by more than 50 per-cent; it would double!

When we think about it, the task should not be insuperable.

For most members to achieve this, it probably wouldn't even involve them having to go out and convince the general public. Most probably already have relatives, friends or working acquaintances who are sympathetic to our cause.

This year, tell them to stop just talking; tell them to commit themselves!

IAN SLOAN

Sir, — Just one word, or the absence of it, can be very important in the media.

Have you noticed that in almost all the reports of the recent American primary elections on TV the commentator does not use the word 'American'; he just wades straight in and speaks of the 'Michigan primary' or the 'New Hampshire primary'.

It is almost as if these states were not in the USA but in Britain, and the elections were our elections. Is this what our media masters want us to believe?

Then, on the side of inclusion, have you noticed how all reports of army actions in Northern Ireland speak always of the 'British Army', 'British soldiers' or 'British troops'?

This surely begs the question: seeing that Northern Ireland is part of British territory and is a British concern, what other army, soldiers or troops could possibly be engaged there?

The very use of the word 'British' in description of our forces in Northern Ireland has, to me, a subtle and cunning purpose: it is to implant the idea that Northern Ireland is really a 'foreign' country, and that our forces have the same role there as they have in Germany or elsewhere abroad.

I remember that back in the 1960s and 1970s, when the Rhodesia issue was front-page news, reports on the Rhodesian government of Ian Smith always referred to it, not as the 'Smith government, but as the 'Smith regime. When does a government cease to be a government and become a 'regime'? Evidently when the lefties of the BBC and press decide it is out of favour and must be blacklisted.

Thus are the most ardent supporters of a 'democratic' political movement 'enthusisastic' while those of a 'non-democratic' one 'fanatical'. Likewise, the soldiers of 'democracies' fight 'bravely', while those of the 'non-democracies' fight 'fanatically'.

LOWER THAN THE GUTTER

Our view of the Sunday Times journalists who lost Richard Edmonds his job

THE GUTTER PRESS well and truly lived up to its reputation last month when The Sunday Times, a paper which likes to think of itself as one of the 'higher tone' weeklies, published an article on Holocaust News, in which it gave prominence to leading BNP activist Richard Edmonds, who has undertaken much of the distribution of the paper.

Two ST journalists, Jon Craig and Jo Revell, interviewed Mr. Edmonds and then, before leaving, asked for a phone number at which they could get him during the weekday in any emergency. On being given his office number, they than rang it and ascertained from the switchboard operator that it was the Cable and Wireless company for which Mr. Edmonds worked.

They then published the name of the company, completely without relevance to the subject matter at hand, in their subsequent report.

Mr. Edmonds was duly called into his superior's office the very next day and relieved of his position with the company.

Words are inadequate to describe our feelings about the foul and underhand tactics of these two journalists in seeking to deprive a person of his livelihood because the do not like his political views. It is a tactic typical of the lowest vermin of the extreme left, and it is a revealing reflection on The Sunday Times that such contemptible specimens should be employed on its staff.

STAND BY SOUTH AFRICA!

unbearable tyranny for Blacks. But the truth is that it is regarded as a haven by Africans, fleeing from the real tyrannies, as well as the chaos and poverty, found everywhere in 'independent' Africa. In fact, South Africa has a severe problem with illegal black immigrants from neighbouring black states — immigrants of whom there are said to be up to a million inside South Africa's borders. The reality is that the Blacks are practically breaking their necks to get into South Africa!

It is hardly to be supposed that the people behind the drive to bring down White South Africa do not know these facts. It would be hard to believe that Mrs. Thatcher does not know them.

But then the Blacks are not, and never were, intended to benefit from the planned downfall of White South Africa, any more than are the Whites. The Blacks are simply there to be used as a revolutionary bludgeon against the Whites — used by those who do stand to benefit.

Foremost among these is cosmopolitan multi-billionaire Harry Oppenheimer, who controls South Africa's gold and diamond production and fronts for the international Rothschild banking clan. This financial fraternity is not in the least worried about the spread either of chaos or communism, whether in Africa or elsewhere across the globe. Indeed, Oppenheimer & Co. have never had it so good in Africa as since the White Man has been expelled. Communist organisations like the ANC, whose real leader Joe Slovo is a South African of Jewish origins with the rank of colonel in the KGB, are just a useful tool for securing this purpose.

expense of Britain's economic self-sufficiency, independence and well-being as a nation. These millionaires certainly will not apply their wealth to the vital task of rebuilding Britain's industrial power.

What is needed for Britain's economic regeneration is not just another dose either of the old and failed capitalism or the equally old and failed socialism; what is needed is an entirely new economic philosophy that goes beyond capitalism and socialism alike. What is needed is what we have coined as ECONOMIC NATIONALISM: the national co-ordination and regulation of all the nation's economic resources, in both the private and public sector, in a massive programme of national economic renewal — based on the principle that no item shall be imported from abroad that cannot be produced in Britain. That is the only way to future economic salvation.

CAPITALISM AND COMMUNISM CO-OPERATE IN AFRICA

To clinch this cosy relationship between the monopoly capitalist and the marxist mob, Oppenheimer's De Beers Corporation markets Soviet diamonds. His Anglo-American Mining Consortium collaborates closely with representatives of the Soviet government in fixing the world price of gold.

These are the real interests that are being served when our politicians and media squeal for an end to civilised white rule in South Africa. If that rule did end, the result would be disastrous for Britain and the remainder of the White Western World. To quote an article in one of the ANC's organs, African Communist:-

> "The balance of forces, not only in Southern Africa, but in the whole of Africa and indeed the world, would be fundamentally altered if the South African (i.e. ANC) revolution were to succeed in its aims and overthrow the apartheid state."

This is why we nationalists say: be loyal to our fellow Whites. Stand by White Civilisation. Support South Africa!

'RACIALLY SENSITIVE' NEWS STORIES

to rate just ONE INCH of column-space on an inside page of The Sunday Times.

Also, we heard some months ago that a report had appeared in a local paper in Wolverhampton saying that an attempt had been made by young Blacks to set fire to a police station in that area. Again, not a word of this was mentioned in the national press or on TV or radio.

These developments indicate a new sinister turn in mass media control. It lloks very much as if vital items of news bearing on the efficacy of the multi-racial society is being hushed up or, at the best, greatly played down.

Of one thing the public can be sure: British Nationalist will not be a party to this covering up process. When we hear of such incidents, we will report them loud and clear.

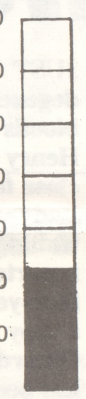
We will do so because we believe the public has a right to know.

Building Fund: £5,357 Needed!

We are pleased to announce that the total in contributions to our Building Fund received in the last month amounts to £543.12, including £250 from CJJ of Basingstoke and £200 from NF of Croydon.

This leaves £4,183.88 still to be raised.

We hope that in the next month or so all supporters will dig deep into their pockets and do their very best to raise much more.



All contributions should be marked 'Headquarters Fund' and sent to PO Box 446, London SE23 2LS.

QUOTE OF THE MONTH

"Israel is virtually the only foreign policy issue that matters in American politics. It is a subject so touchy, so surrounded with taboos and passionate conviction and so divisive that rational debate of America's close relationship — especially during presidential elections — is almost impossible. For most candidates, the safest policies on the Middle East are those that outdo their rivals in support of Israel. Or silence.
